

TATYANA KOTLYAR

a brave human rights defender
in the city of Obninsk, Russia

Russian law on so called “Propiska” [Registration] requires every person to be registered at the place of his/her residency.

Unregistered persons have no access to healthcare, education, bank services and can't be formally employed. In the recent years, Tatyana Kotlyar's actions to register migrants and refugees, former prisoners, and homeless people and are lacking registration at her own apartments, have resulted in several fines and repeated courts' litigations.
